

World Café Results – 2011 SV Prevention Conference

Funding	Statewide Support	Big Picture	Common Language	Collaboration	Collaboration Continued
Inter-relatedness of all the areas of prevention, but the competition for funding of each individual area.	Statewide list of prevention programs	Need to decide what is most important, the individual program or overall goal of prevention	Prevention services are a big umbrella covering interconnected issues with overlapping concerns.	New creative ways to do therapy	The customers of prevention programming in various social areas would benefit most from collaborative funding
How are we supposed to collaborate yet compete for funds?	Need leadership (state & local) that promotes specific programs/ prevention messages, help us make the case	The whole person is too complex to merely concentrate on helping one part	Decreasing risk factors in one area impacts many others	Different ways to get the message across	Any violence can be “a foot in the door” to discuss sexual violence prevention
Collaborating with others without fear of losing funding	Need of state to relieve fears about collaborating with other issues	We need to stay focused on the big picture	In era of shrinking funds, there is competition among agencies for $ at a time collaboration is crucial	People want to work more with the kids in poorer situations	To really address prevention of sv/ipv you have to collaborate with other community organizations & address cultural competencies
Searching for other prevention programs to collaborate with	Statewide prevention networking events leading to monthly “highlighted” prevention program from different area	“we” make “the system” more confusing than it needs to be	Less gab, more action	Develop more innovative/creative ways to start dialogue with young men/adult men, and with women as a man who works in this field	Keep youth the focus of your everyday goals

World Café Results – 2011 SV Prevention Conference

United front to schools through collaboration			Be proactive	Learned more about consent and coercion and how to more clearly define them to students	Collaborate with area agencies to come up with new venues for programming
Prevention programs need financial support			All of society is responsible for social norms	Reduce stigma, communicate, increase funding = more effective prevention efforts	The information we all have to share; wealth of knowledge... we can learn so much from each other
Continue programs in exisance and encourage new programs			I felt each one's passion professionally, but I don't know they know how to connect to each other	So many barriers, so little time	Sv prevention can be connected with other preventions
Need to refocus on our common goal of helping communities instead of focusing on quantity in #'s, focus on quality of programs			There is a need for a common language across all prevention efforts	Collaborations and partnerships across agencies is necessary for doing this work	Prevention agencies can successfully work together to enhance program and save resources
Stop competition and funding problems			Dialogue	Education is key; awareness, issues, prevention, break the silos, goals	Youth development as prevention
All together we can help better is we are ONE team			Public health is the language to frame this	Respect is common through au programs. Need more of it	Find communities n mission to work toward in collaboration
			Reframe language	Prevention means promotion of the positive, healthy relationships	Importance of communication between agencies

World Café Results – 2011 SV Prevention Conference

				It is a paradigm shift from prevention of the negative to promotion of the positive	Networking is productive; two heads are better than one
				Teen pregnancy prevention	To collaborate with another prevention group to become stronger for prevention purposes
				Experiences of working with youth	Partnership is key
				Reach out more; connect; realize connections and work on it	